Message from the Chairs

Dear IEEE ISIE 2020 delegates! This year's ISIE conference was switched from its traditional format to virtual in very little time. The ISIE community was amazingly supportive in this process. Not only did you record great videos of your presentation, and submitted them in time, but you also stayed with us. Some expected a large drop-out once we were forced to go virtual, but the ISIE community is strong. With almost no losses in attendance we can now execute the very first virtual IEEE International Symposium on Industrial Electronics in 2020.

Our thanks go to our great delegates, the organizing team, the reviewers, the track chairs, and special session organizers. You all performed perfectly, and all problems and obstacles were solved in no time.

This conference is an experiment for all of us. We will all learn what a virtual event can do for us, and what it cannot do. We kept the timing and organization relatively close to a "real" conference, and use three days to do the event. Other conferences stretch it over weeks or months, others are even more experiments. It is an exciting time and we will – in a few months – all be smarter in how to use virtual event technologies to do our conferences.

Some aspects of conferences will be limited: the cultural experience or the direct contact when making new friends works best when physically being there. We as organizers tried our best to create a conference for you that provides you with as much experience and service as possible. We have a fantastic lineup of keynote speakers, a large number of excellent papers, supported by wonderful videos.

Now it is time to meet in our virtual session rooms and challenge each other, discuss the paper results, and to inspire each other for progress in Industrial Electronics. Thank you all for supporting IEEE ISIE 2020!
